Basic Personal Data

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the URL `europd.bmemelab.it`. The page has a dark blue header with a navigation menu: Home, Sitemap, Contacts, Login, Register. A search bar is located on the right. Below the header is a blue banner featuring a circular logo with a building and a torch, and the text "European / International Joint Ph.D. in Social Representation and Communication".

Below the banner, there is a breadcrumb trail: Home > User account > Register. The main content area is titled "Home" and contains three buttons: "Create new account", "Log in", and "Request new password".

The "Create new account" button is highlighted in yellow. Below it is the "E-mail *" field, which is a text input box. A note below the field states: "A valid e-mail address. All e-mails from the system will be sent to this address. The e-mail address is not made public and will only be used if you wish to receive a new password or wish to receive certain news or notifications by e-mail."

Below the email field is a yellow button labeled "Registration". This button is followed by a "Registration" section containing the following fields:

- Family Name : A text input box.
- First Name : A text input box.
- Middle Name: A text input box.
- Professional Role : A dropdown menu with the text "- Select -".
- Gender : Two radio buttons, "Male" and "Female".

Below the gender section is a yellow button labeled "Born in". This button is followed by a "Born in" section containing the following fields:

- Continent / Country : A dropdown menu with the text "- Select -".
- City : A text input box with a small circular icon on the right.

Description of the categories of analysis.

General Technical Instructions for using the grid of analysis: This grid has been conceived to classify every piece of literature on Social Representations according to the most relevant features of scientific publications. Some fields contain a menu of categories most frequently employed by Social Representations researchers. Two special menu items exist:

Empty

The empty menu choice has two purposes: first, you can select no category. If it is necessary to choose more than one category or to add a category which has not included in the menu, choose the empty menu choice and type the text field below the menu.

Abstract *

In 2008, Edvins Šnore, the Latvian film director, released a shocking and provocative documentary, "The Soviet Story," which explored some terrible episodes from the Soviet past as well as the collaboration between the Soviet and Nazi regimes. Scholars have argued that "The Soviet Story" is an effective Latvian response to Russian propaganda, but it also exemplifies the broader problems of post-communist memory politics. This article takes a step further in the discussion of "The Soviet Story." It focuses on the idea of how memory work triggered by the documentary got started on social networking sites. In particular, the article deals with the video-sharing website YouTube

The Grid

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the URL `europjd.bmemelab.it`. The page has a dark blue header with navigation links: Home, Sitemap, Contacts, My account, and Log out. A search bar is located on the right. Below the header is a banner with the European Union flag and the text "European / International Joint Ph.D. in Social Representation and Communication".

The main content area is titled "Edit Meta-Theoretical Analysis Social Representations, Alternative Representations and Semantic Barriers". It includes tabs for "View", "Edit", and "Workflow". The "Edit" tab is active.

The form contains the following fields:

- Title : A text input field containing "Social Representations, Alternative Representations and Semantic Barriers".
- Bibliographic item reference : A text input field containing "Social Representations, Alternative Representations and Semantic Barriers".
- Type of paper: A section with a yellow background and a blue box containing instructions and a list of options.

Type of paper instructions:

- NEVER SKIP TO REPLY TO THIS QUESTION
- Select only one of the modality below:
 - Empirical: This field must be chosen if the publication contains an empirical work showing new research contributions.
 - Theoretical: This field must be chosen if the aim of the publication is to show a conceptual elaboration in absence of new empirical data or their processing.
 - Thematic Review: This field must be chosen if the publication's main content is a reasoned review of former articles and papers or books in the literature on Social Representations.
 - Bibliography: This field must be chosen if the publication contains only a more or less organised but uncommented list of articles, papers or books.
 - Meta-analysis: This field must be chosen if the publication contains a meta-analysis of the empirical researches on Social Representations carried out according to the statistical methods for meta-analysis (introduced by G. Glass in 1976) focused on contrasting and combining results from different studies, in the hope of identifying patterns among study results, sources of disagreement among those results, or other interesting relationships that may come to light in the context of multiple studies.
 - Meta-theoretical analysis: This field must be chosen if the publication contains a meta-theoretical analysis of the Social Representations literature based on the method introduced by de Rosa in 1994, by using this grid

Typology of Social Representations

The screenshot shows a web form with two main sections. The first section, 'Typology of S.R.', has a blue header and contains instructions and three radio button options. The second section, 'Spatial-Temporal Context', has a yellow header and contains instructions, two buttons, and a list of radio button options for geographical area.

Typology of S.R.

The items in this field are only selected when the researcher makes it clear it is his intention to study them and when the investigated typology is clearly identifiable. In all other cases it is preferable not to use the field, as it would imply the compiler's assumption of a theoretical stand on the publication.

The modalities have been defined according to Moscovici's work (1986):

- Closed / hegemonic SR. This item must be chosen if the SR elements are evenly distributed and share the same characteristics throughout the whole population.
- Open / emancipated SR. This item must be chosen if the SR elements are approximately the same in the entire population, but their meaning is determined by differing and even contrasting values.
- Agonal / critical / polemical SR. This item must be chosen if the SR elements are distributed among the various subgroups of a population, so that it is necessary to bring them together to find out their coherence.

Spatial-Temporal Context

Geographical area of location of the study

In this field must be written the geographical area of origin of the sample (ex.: where the sample has been collected).

- If mentioned, include in English the City, Country and Continents (ex.: Rome, Italy, Europe)
- Do not use abbreviations (for example not U.S.A. but United States of America)
- If not mentioned a specific City, Country or Continents, but just a location, choose the nature of the context (ex.: rural area or metropolitan context)

Contributions to the paradigm/elements of the theory
The way in which alternative representations can be characterised in the following way. Alternative representations existing within social representations are a necessary outcome of the existing plurality of representations. They enable people subscribing to different representations to communicate with each other, even if only in a partial way. Alternative representations are potentially both destabilizing and protective. They can destabilize because they allow the alternative within, but

The present analysis suggests that we need to conceive of a continuum between emancipated and polemical representations in terms of the degree of dialogue or tension between the main representation and the alternative representation. At the emancipated end, there is the potential for cross contamination and transformative dialogue between the main representation and the alternative representations. At the polemical end of the continuum, the

General/Generic or Specific reference to Social Representation theory *

☐ General/Generic
The field 3.1.1. must be chosen if the publication refers to SR theory in a generic way without specifying any of its peculiar characteristics (as specified in the fields below from 3.2.. until the next section 4.) If you select General/Generic go directly to "4.Theoretical reference to other constructs and/or Theories".

☒ Specific
If any of the field comprised between 3.2.1. and 3.3.2. is present, you should choose the field 3.1.2. Specific

And here's how it will look like:

The screenshot shows a web application interface for a European / International Joint Ph.D. program. The browser address bar displays "europd.bmemelab.it". The top navigation bar includes links for "Home", "Sitemap", "Contacts", "My account", and "Log out", along with a search icon. The main header features a circular logo with a building and a torch, and the text "European / International Joint Ph.D. in Social Representation and Communication".

The main content area displays a breadcrumb trail: "Home > Social Representations, Alternative Representations and Semantic Barriers". Below this, the title "Social Representations, Alternative Representations and Semantic Barriers" is shown, followed by two tabs: "View" (selected) and "Workflow". A citation is provided: "Gillespie, A. (2008). The "View" tab is active, showing a detailed view of the article. The title "Social Representations, Alternative Representations and Semantic Barriers" is underlined. Below the title, the publication date is listed as "Published after 1952". The author's name, "Alex Gillespie", is displayed in a larger font. Below the author's name, the following information is provided: "Surname: Gillespie", "First name: Alex", "E-mail: a.t.gillespie@lse.ac.uk", and "Institution: London School of Economics".

The "Workflow" tab is also visible, showing a section titled "Meta-Analysis". Below this, the text "Assigned to: dos Santos Tânia" is displayed. At the bottom, a yellow button labeled "View Meta-Theoretical Analysis: 'Social Representations, Alternative Representations and Semantic Barriers'" is visible.
