The So.Re.Com Joint-IDP Activities

The So.Re.Com. Joint-IDP Early-Stage Researchers Activities – November 2015

During the month of November 2015, the Early Stage Researchers have continued their secondments, spread all over the world, from China to Mexico, from Canada to Brazil, from Argentina to many EU countries: Austria, Czech Republic, France, Romania, Spain, Switzerland.

Following the successful massive data import into the SoReCom “A.S. de Rosa” @-library, the enterprise has been implementing the user-profiles and related functionalities in order to proceed to test the new web-platform.

In order to improve the search of missing or new Pdf, some ESRs (Teresa Forte in Brazil, Carlos Miguel Aguilar in Argentina, Mihaela Alexandra Gherman in Argentina) have collaborated with dr. Laura Dryjanska to the co-supervision of six master students who are contributing to the development of the SoReCom “A.S. de Rosa” @-Library. They are collaborating to the unified research program on the meta-theoretical analysis for their master thesis supported by the extra-EU Sapienza mobility scholarships at the same abroad institutions, that host some ESRs for their secondments.

Weekly monitoring Skype Meetings during the secondment was continued with the Early Stage Researchers in order to discuss the meta-theoretical analysis carried out on previously selected publications, to be informed about their progresses and complementary activities followed at the host abroad institution and to assist some of them in conference presentations.

Following previous formal communication (October 9), on October 14 and 15, 2015 and November 5 and 6, Skype meetings with each ESR and Sapienza Supervisory Board and in some cases with the co-tutors at the host abroad institution have been organised in order to:

- present the 13 recommendations from the REA-Research Executive Agency after the Mid Term Review;
- share with the ESRs the proposal elaborated by Sapienza Supervisory Board;
- discuss with the ESRs in order to get their opinion and suggestions concerning the two above mentioned points.

Both the fellows and the associated partners have been invited to send their feedbacks in written format. The revised and integrated new version of the document elaborated by Sapienza Supervisory Board has been again sent for approval and/or further feedbacks.

The So.Re.Com Joint-IDP and European/International Joint PhD in Social Representations and Communication Dissemination Activities

IX Jornada Internacional sobre Representações Sociais – JIRS, Teresina/Piauí/Brazil 24-27 November 2015

The Theory of Social Representations occupies an important place in social psychology and in different areas of knowledge. The international recognition of its scientific relevance led its founder, Serge Moscovici, to receive top honor prizes, like - among many others - the Balzan Prize (2003) and the Award Wilhelm Wundt-William James (2007).

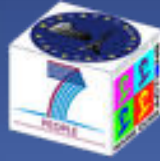

The strong pace of development of this study field in Brazil has led the Brazilian production to benefit from the exchange with foreign researchers in the International Conference on Social Representations (JIRS), providing a significant contribution to the international field, as recognized by major European and Latin-American authors.

The ESR Teresa Forte presented two posters:

- de Rosa, A.S., Dryjanska, L. & Forte, T. (2015). Geo-mapping the evolution of the social representations theory: the Latin America scenario.
- de Rosa, A.S., Dryjanska, L. & Bocci, E. (2015). Geo-mapping the global Dissemination of the Social Representations theory: Geo-cultural focus.

Study visit of Natalia Cojocaru November 3-19, 2015

Within the actions supported by the European Association of Social Psychology to promote international staff mobility, Prof. Natalia Cojocaru (Associate Professor, PhD in Psychology Faculty of Psychology and Education Sciences State University of Moldova) has spent three weeks at the European/International Joint PhD in Social Representations and Communication Research Centre and Multimedia Lab in Rome (Italy).

Natalia Cojocaru has started to approach on a theoretical level such questions as:

- a) How various social objects of knowledge contribute to the genesis of hegemonic, emancipated and polemic representations in three domains: politics and economy, health, work and organizational contexts;
- b) how these representations are managed at the societal and intergroup levels in various socio-ideological contexts;
- c) what is their dynamics in the society which influences the transformation of a kind of representation into another. In particular:
 - c.1. How does the polemic representation turns, if it does, into a hegemonic representation?
 - c.2. If the transformation occurs, what are the socio-ideological conditions and what is the role played by the social movements in the new communicative scenario of the web 2.0?
 - c.3. What happens with the polemic representation, which does not evolve into a hegemonic one and for how long and under what conditions the polemic representation remain polemic?
 - c.4. How are the controversial topics and polemic representation negotiated at the societal and intergroup level?

Dr. Natalia Cojocaru has spent these three weeks in November 2015 in the European/International Joint PhD in Social Representations and Communication Research Centre and Multimedia Lab, supported by a EASP grant for post-doc visiting scholars.
