The So.Re.Com. THEmatic NETwork Scientific Activities Upcoming International Events 2018

We are pleased to announce that the IAPS25 Conference: Transitions to sustainability, lifestyles changes and human wellbeing: cultural, environmental and political challenges

will take place at the University of Roma Tre
8-13 July 2018 - Rome, Italy

The theme of the 25th IAPS 2018 Rome Conference follows coherently with the themes of the last Conferences in Lund/Alnarp, Timisoara, Glasgow and Leipzig. The theme of the last IAPS conference underlined the importance of the everyday life contexts to understand people-environment relations. In Rome 2018 we will go further along this thematic stream, and focus on the transition processes needed to achieve more sustainable societies at the global, regional and local level. The theme we propose is therefore referred to the “Transitions to sustainability, lifestyles and human wellbeing: cultural, environmental and political challenges”.

To achieve a significant shift towards a more sustainable relation between humans and their daily life environments, the need of a radical lifestyle change is increasingly recognised, at the scientific, political and public opinion level. The transition to a low-carbon, more inclusive and open society has already started, under the push of different democratic instances and driving forces. To sustain this transition, and to manage the related cultural, economic and political processes, people-environment studies have a fundamental role to play. The integrated contribution of the different scientific disciplines, with the diversity of approaches, theories, and methods that are traditionally hosted within the IAPS community, represents an opportunity and a tool to understand this dynamics and, in turn, to help decision makers in improving policy and governance instruments to face these challenges.

Therefore, the conference works will focus around these issues, and will try to address important questions in this domain, such as, for example:

How can we realise transitions towards sustainability in the real world?

What are drivers, triggers, instruments – but also the obstacles and limits to these transitions?

Which is the role of the key actors and networks to advance sustainability transitions in practice: individuals, groups, communities, and institutions? How can scientific results impact societal challenges in practice, and how can we provide effective and evidence-based knowledge about the fundamental role of people-environment studies in this process? What concrete examples and best-practices can we look at, for helping sustainability transitions towards a low-carbon and more inclusive society? Which role can real-world and laboratory experiments play to change our lifestyles and increase our pro-environmental behaviour?

The European/International Joint PhD in Social Representations and Communication

2018 MAIN TRAINING EVENTS

We are pleased to announce that the 24th Edition of the European/International Joint PhD International Summer School will held in June 2018, from Monday 18 to Friday 22.

Enhancing inter-institutional collaboration supported by the Erasmus teaching staff mobility toward Sapienza University of Rome, Professors Pascal Moliner (Université de Montpellier III, France) and Inna Bovina (Moscow State University of Psychology and Education, Russia) have already confirmed their participation with an intensive program entitled “SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY OF PICTURES: Empirical studies from the social representations perspective” aimed at presenting a set of theoretical, methodological and empirical elements about the links between social representations and pictures (photographs, drawings, advertising, propaganda).

The program will be articulated in several sessions of 2-3 hours each – followed by discussion with the participants - as below:

1. Typologies, properties and functions of pictures.
2. Pictures and social thinking. Theoretical approach.
3. Pictures analysis methods.
4. Pictures production and interpretation. Empirical studies.
5. Collective memory and propaganda. Empirical studies.

Prof. Annamaria de Rosa (Sapienza University of Rome) will contribute to the scientific program presenting a series of iconic-based techniques that she has created and employed in empirical research programs on different topics, illustrating theoretical and methodological implications of the “modelling paradigmatic approach” to Social Representations developed by her.

Other professors (to be confirmed) will contribute to the scientific program.
